

THE ANNUAL WET PORT VISIT TO JAWAHARLAL NEHRU PORT :(February 21st)

Organized by the Industry Interaction and Student Activities Committee (IISAC), the students were in for a day of learning the intricacies of the import-export scenario in India. Jawaharlal Nehru Port Trust (JNPT), also known by the name of Nhava Sheva port, is the largest container port in India. The visit was also graced by the presence of Professor Jayakar Sodagiri who provided an able mentorship and guidance throughout the visit.

The officials at JNPT guided the students and offered valuable know-how about the operations of the port. The Jawaharlal Nehru Port Trust (JNPT) at Navi Mumbai (formerly known as the Nhava Sheva Port) is India's No. 1 container port handling more than half of the container cargo across all major ports in India. Commissioned on 26th May 1989, JNPT occupies a prominent place among the most modern ports in India and is ranked 28th among the top 100 container Ports in the world.

The students got to know about different vessels and their operating frequency, the different types of containers, the scanners available for the containers, cranes, and their operational purpose. The visit lasted about two hours as the excited students explored every part of the port and gained a comprehensive understanding from the officials about the working of the largest port of India. The officials of the JNPT enthusiastically clarified all the ambiguities and inquisitions of the students.

WET PORT VISIT

*"Tell me and I forget, teach me and I may remember,
involve me and I learn."*
